The search feature is available for the peer-to-peer property lending platform's live manual lending deals, known as select invest.

Kuflink said that development has started on enhancing the proprietary loan management system to meet increasing demand from brokers and clients by allowing them to upload enquiries seamlessly and get faster decision in principles.

In the next few weeks, the IFISA sign-in process will be ready for digitalisation, a new segregated IFISA wallet and self-invested personal loan wallet will be released and updated images and information on the platform's development loans will be unveiled.

Kuflink has also started development on connecting to its open banking app, which then means it does not require an uploaded bank statement and gives the ability to make bank transfers in real time.
