Kuflink hires new business development manager

MICHAEL LLOYD | INDUSTRY NEWS, NEWS, PROPERTY | GURJIT DALE, KUFLINK, NARINDER KHATTOARE

Kuflink has appointed its first new business development manager (BDM) in two years.

The peer-to-peer property lending platform has named Gurjit Dale (pictured below) as its new BDM, who joins from a senior sales position at consumer goods corporation Proctor & Gamble.

Dale, who will report directly to chief executive Narinder Khattoare, previously worked as a customer relationship manager at Nationwide Building Society and was a mortgage adviser from 2011 to 2016.

“We are delighted to welcome Gurjit,” said Khattoare.

“He brings a rounded background to his new role with us having built up experience of the mortgage market as well as working in a totally different channel.

“The success of our P2P platform means we have more funds to bring to the intermediary sector and with Gurjit’s arrival, we are keen to ensure that brokers are including Kuflink when they are looking for a short-term lending partner and a proposition they can trust.”

“I am thoroughly looking forward to help Kuflink with the next phase of its development,” said Dale.

“I will be working closely with Kuflink’s key accounts as well as assisting in the company’s overall growth across the sector in the coming years.”
